

SOCIAL SKILLS PROGRAMS

TERM 3 AND 4

LEGO® BASED THERAPY

LEGO® Based Therapy is a small group program that has proven to help children with social difficulties, including ASD, to improve and practice their social interaction and communication skills.

The program supports children to socialise with their peers, have fun in a supportive and understanding environment and enables them to improve the skills of sharing, waiting, turn-taking, talking with others and making friends.

What happens in LEGO® Based Therapy?

- Each child learns a clear set of rules and LEGO® building skills
- They are then introduced to a group of other children
- Everyone in the group agrees upon a project which is achievable for everyone involved – projects are usually certain structures or buildings to create
- Each child is assigned a role for the project
